Early Childhood Early Intervention

If your child has a disability, or is developing differently compared with other children, then early intervention can help your child reach their potential.

Early Childhood Early Intervention (ECEI) is part of the NDIS. It is specifically for younger children. You don't need a formal diagnosis for your child to get early intervention.

Early Childhood Early Intervention can cover the cost of therapies and equipment that can help your child's development. You know your child best, and early intervention works in partnership with you and your child.

To be eligible for the NDIS you need to be an Australian citizen or permanent resident. However, your child can access early intervention even if you or your child do not meet the residency requirements. Contact your local Early Childhood Partner for more information.
